Yak Films documents street dance around the world, and here they take one track, Ta-ku's version of the Inspector Gadget theme, and shoot four styles of dance -- hip hop, popping, krumping and toprock / house. Click through for the rest of the videos. Kasia Cieplak-Mayr von Baldegg January 6, 2012 Yak Films made a name for themselves in 2009 with Turf Dancing in the Rain, a stunning dance film featuring Oakland's Turf Feinz that has over four million views on YouTube now. Since then they've been traveling the world to document dance competitions. Here they take one track, Ta-ku's version of the Inspector Gadget theme, and shoot four styles of dance -- hip hop, popping, krumping and toprock / house. Popping | Poppin' Scream from Switzerland Hip Hop | Paradox from Holland Toprock / House | From Denmark Krump | JR Wave from Germany For more work by Yak Films, see their YouTube channel.
